

Figure 1 consists of three network diagrams illustrating the relationships between different types of educational institutions. The left diagram, titled 'Two-Mode', shows connections between various schools and universities. The middle diagram, titled 'Tertiary Projection', shows connections between tertiary institutions. The right diagram, titled 'High School Projection', shows connections between high schools. Nodes are represented by circles and squares, and edges by lines.

Figure 1 consists of three network diagrams illustrating the relationships between different types of educational institutions. The left diagram, titled 'Two-Mode', shows connections between various schools and universities. The middle diagram, titled 'Tertiary Projection', shows connections between tertiary institutions. The right diagram, titled 'High School Projection', shows connections between high schools. Nodes are represented by circles and squares, and edges by lines.

Figure 1 consists of three network diagrams illustrating the relationships between different types of educational institutions. The left diagram, titled 'Two-Mode', shows connections between various schools and universities. The middle diagram, titled 'Tertiary Projection', shows connections between tertiary institutions. The right diagram, titled 'High School Projection', shows connections between high schools. Nodes are represented by circles and squares, and edges by lines.